TV PIPELINE

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Has “Burn Notice” been canceled? I have not seen anything about it starting a new season. And how about “Boardwalk Empire”? Has HBO scheduled it to resume sometime in the near future? —Jack Albrecht, Fairfield, Calif.

A: As the recent prequel movie about Sam Axe (Bruce Campbell) hopefully suggested, “Burn Notice” remains very much on USA Network’s radar. In fact, last year, the show received a renewal for two seasons at once; its fifth round begins Thursday, June 23, and it’s already guaranteed a sixth season that will arrive in 2012.

As for “Boardwalk Empire,” it didn’t take long at all after its debut last September for HBO to order a second season of the Steve Buscemi-starring, Martin Scorsese-produced Prohibition drama. The new episodes are likely to begin running this fall.

Q: When is “Drop Dead Diva” going to be showing its first episode of the new season? —Amanda Clark, Hartsell, Ala.

A: It’ll be in June, the specific date still to be set at the time this column was written. Among things to look forward to in the third round of the Lifetime series: guest star turns by Wanda Sykes, Howard Hesseman (“WKRP in Cincinnati”) and actor-director Tony Goldwyn (“Ghost,” “Conviction”); more musical numbers; and a wedding fairly early in the season.

Q: I have been watching reruns of “All in the Family.” What is the line that follows “Everybody pulled his weight”? —Robert Shaw, Port Orange, Fla.

A: “Gee, our old LaSalle ran great” — the LaSalle having been a car that was connected to Cadillac and marketed from 1927 to 1940 — is the lyric in question from the theme song “Those Were the Days,” which was created for the classic, often controversial CBS sitcom by Charles Strouse and Lee Adams.

Every day is Mother’s Day for Emily Procter of ‘CSI: Miami’

By Kate O’Hare

CBS’ hit forensic crime drama “CSI: Miami” ends its ninth season on Sunday, May 8, which, for star Emily Procter, also happens to be the first Mother’s Day she will celebrate as a mom instead of just a daughter.

Early last December, Procter, 42, and boyfriend Paul Bryan became the parents of daughter Philippa Frances, called Pippa, the product of a natural pregnancy that came as a welcome surprise after rounds of fertility treatments (and, according to Procter, was heralded by a dream in which a nurse told her she was pregnant).

Procter returned to the show’s Manhattan Beach, Calif., set in January. On this Friday in mid-March, she’s working on the finale episode - and working her way through her baby weight with spinning classes.

“So far, so good,” she says of her knees.

Told the finale would air on Mother’s Day, Procter beams.

“No! Is it really?”

Then a thoughtful publicist, aware of Procter’s sweet tooth, appears with cupcakes.

“I might pick that one,” Procter says, peering into the box, “because it might be peanut butter.”

As to how motherhood is going, Procter downs some cupcake and says, “It’s great. It’s funny, because I did all of these interviews as soon as I had the baby, and they were asking questions, and I really didn’t have an idea of anything, because I was so blurry. Gosh, I was so sleepy that I was like, ‘It’s wonderful!’”

And now?

“She’s started cooing,” Procter says. “I like to think she’s talking. I had her on my lap the other day, and I was saying, ‘I love you. I love you. I love you.’ And she said, ‘Oooh, ooh, ooh.’ Now she just says, ‘Oooh,’ all the time. It gives you goose bumps.

“I loved this season, but I’m worried about next year, because I know they’re going to make me work.”

Procter’s pregnancy wasn’t written into the script, so at the end, she did most of her work sitting down behind something. In the finale - which ends with at least two series regulars left for dead - Procter is mobile again but keeping her lab coat on.

Before her first Mother’s Day, Procter had Baby’s First Christmas, but it didn’t quite turn out the way she might have hoped.

“We had so many people come from home,” Procter says. “(Pippa) had a cold, and that was really scary. So Christmas was spent in a very frantic and frenetic, ‘Oooh, baby, oh, no, baby,’ and me standing in the shower with the steam going and just crying, ‘My baby’s sick. Oh, no, my baby’s sick.’”

“We didn’t open presents, I think, for a week.”

While she had the usual new-parent sleep deprivation (“It’s amazing what sleep does for your looks,” she says), Procter didn’t mind the late-night feedings.

“I really loved it,” she says. “I just felt it was like the two of us. I just loved being with her when it was really quiet. ... I miss it. I already miss it. She’s sleeping through the night. Everybody’s like, ‘You’re so lucky,’ and I’m like, ‘I kind of miss the middle of the night.’”

The new father also seems to be enjoying himself.

“He loves it,” Procter says. “It was instantaneous for him. He was the one who was like, ‘Eh, I can have children, I cannot have children. I don’t really care.’ I would tell you it’s the best thing I’ve ever done, but I think he would tell you it’s the best thing he’s ever done, which is a beautiful thing to see.

“He changes most of the diapers.”

New mom Emily Procter stars in “CSI: Miami,” which concludes its ninth season Sunday on CBS.

RETIRE SMART

Don't Forget to Protect Your Retirement Plan From Inflation Risk

By Mark Miller

Higher prices at the gas pump and the grocery store have provided a reminder of an economic threat that hasn't been front and center for most of us for quite a while: inflation.

But seniors haven't forgotten about inflation. Many are living on fixed incomes and haven't been able to earn much of anything on their savings in the current near-zero interest rate environment. What's more, seniors are affected disproportionately by health care inflation, which continues to rise more quickly than other prices.

Over the long haul, inflation is a potential threat to retirement security, since a well-constructed plan looks out over a 25- to 30-year horizon. Yet inflation protection isn't baked into nearly enough retirement plans, according to a new survey by the Society of Actuaries.

The study found that 72 percent of pre-retirees - and 55 percent of retirees - have a strategy to protect themselves against inflation in retirement. But the percentages probably are too optimistic, according to Steve Vernon, a prominent retirement educator and co-author of the report. "That's higher than my experience talking with people at the seminars I teach. I think, there's a say/do gap there, where people say they're planning for inflation, but they're not."

"Other studies show that only half of pre-retirees have even calculated the amount of money they'll need for retirement," he adds. "So if that's true, there's no way 72 percent have thought about inflation."

Indeed, the new 2011 Retirement Confidence Survey from the Employee Benefit Research Institute shows that just 42 percent even have tried to calculate how much they'll need to live comfortably in retirement.

Inflation poses several retirement challenges. Healthcare costs are rising about four times faster than overall inflation; meanwhile, sources of guaranteed income are faltering. Social Security is replacing a smaller percentage of income due to the increasing full retirement age implemented in 1983, rising Medicare Part B premium deductions and more Social Security income subject to income tax. The near-disappearance of traditional defined benefit (DB) pensions in the private sector also hurts retiree purchasing power.

Here are three ways to add inflation protection to your retirement plan:

1. Maximize your Social Security income. Social Security provides important inflation protection. It's one of the few retirement benefits around with a built-in cost-of-living adjustment (COLA), which is made using a formula set by federal law. Working at least until your Normal Retirement Age (currently 66) boosts your odds of receiving higher lifetime payments, and you'll receive all the COLA adjustments from the intervening years.

The current yardstick used to measure consumer prices - the CPI-W - didn't yield a COLA in 2009 or 2010 due to low inflation. However, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) forecasts that a 1.1 percent COLA will be made in 2012, a 1.2 percent raise in 2013 and average increases of 2.1 percent from 2014 through 2021.

That's the good news. Here's the bad: AARP estimates that rising Medicare premiums-which are deducted from Social Security-will eat up most of those increases.

And deficit reform proposals call for changing Social Security's cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) formula by adopting a new "chained CPI" that takes into account "substitution purchases" consumers make to avoid high prices. If adopted, the "chained" CPI is expected to rise 0.3 percent less annually than the CPI-W.

2. Factor inflation into your savings plan. Model your retirement portfolio to allow for an annual withdrawal rate of four percent, plus an additional bump for inflation starting in year two of retirement. Adjust that plan only if necessary to preserve assets in the event of a severe bear market. And consider adding Treasury Inflation-Protected Securities and higher-yielding bonds to the portfolio.

3. Buy inflation protection. An income annuity can protect against inflation if you purchase one with a cost-of-living feature that provides automatic increases in payments indexed to inflation.

Likewise, long-term care insurance should be purchased with a feature that adjusts daily benefit payments annually to protect against escalating nursing care costs.

An annual five percent compound growth option is typical, and can boost the benefit value of a long-term care policy significantly over time. The American Association for Long-Term Care Insurance calculates that a policy bought in 1995 by a 55-year-old couple with a $150 daily benefit amount and a five percent compound growth option would grow to a $508 daily benefit by 2020, when they're both 80 years old.

Walk-ins Welcome • Open Wed.-Sat.

HOROSCOPES ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20 Aries, with so many things on your plate, it might seem as if nothing will ever get done. Separate things into manageable lists and tackle each project one at a time.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21 Taurus, take a few moments to analyze your preferences in friends. Maybe you're being too stringent. It's time to open up the options and make a few new ones.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21 Gemini, there are so many fun things in store that you can't decide where to begin. Get started on the fun and make the most of the good times ahead.

CANCER - June 22/July 22 Cancer, devote lots of time to hanging out with friends this week. Others will flock to you and want to be in your presence. Enjoy the spotlight.

LEO - July 23/Aug 23 Leo, without much on the docket, this week could prove a bit boring. Instead of focusing on the negative side of having a lot of time, relish in the relaxation time.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22 Bad news arrives and catches you off guard, Virgo. Unless you can rebound quickly, it might take a lot of wind out of your sails for the time being.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23 Opportunities at work are many, Libra. You will be a rising star this week. Enjoy the notoriety while it lasts. If your salary is commission-based, expect much.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22 Scorpio, even though you try hard, you cannot control everything. You will have to go with the flow every now and then. It will help you develop a stronger character.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21 Sagittarius, it's time to put an end to an ongoing disagreement with a loved one. This feud is taking up too much energy that can be put toward better things.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20 Capricorn, some people underestimate your abilities, but you can be quite a force when you set your mind to it. Continue to surprise others with your talents.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18 Aquarius, although you will be held accountable for something going on at work, the effects will actually work to your advantage. It's good to be in the limelight.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20 Pisces, concentration proves difficult but you have to buckle down and get some important tasks accomplished.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

BEFORE AND AFTER IN THE SOAPS

By Toby Goldstein

ALL MY CHILDREN: After asking Greenlee to remarry him (since Ricky performed the first ceremony), Ryan learned from Madison that Greenlee knew about the pregnancy before they were wed, and couldn't forgive her. When Greenlee revealed the deal she made with Scott regarding Madison, Ryan cautioned Scott not to build a relationship on a lie. Coming: Ricky has plans for something permanent with Kendall.

BOLD AND BEAUTIFUL: The Logans and Forresters, devastated when the official search for Brooke and Thomas was called off, took matters into their own hands and refused to give up. Whip felt jealous thinking about all the time Taylor is spending with Ridge. Realizing how short life can be, Jackie and Owen passionately expressed their love for each other. Coming: Bill has to be very careful with his choice of words. DAYS OF OUR LIVES: The fake Rafe schemed to have Sami find out about his tryst with another woman, which had the desired result - Sami threw him out. Having accidentally taken faux Rafe's ATM card, Sami headed to the safe house, with the imposter in pursuit. Meanwhile, the real Rafe was rescued from the woods and taken to a convent. Coming: Dario tries to get alone time with Melanie.

DESPERATE HOUSEWIVES: As Paul continued to suffer due to his rapidly declining health, he began to suspect Susan of being responsible for his condition. Lynette and Tom disagreed about where to go on their family vacation, as well as who would make the arrangements. Gaby's bright idea to show Juanita a horror movie resulted in the child being too scared to sleep in her own bed. Coming: Paul seeks answers before it's too late.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Even as the true identity of Lucien was revealed, Brenda fell apart over the child's disappearance and accused Sonny of not caring about him. Suzanne fled after Dante questioned her and was seen boarding a plane with a small child. Armed with Aiden's paternity test result, Liz raced to the justice of the peace but couldn't bring herself to hurt Lucky by interfering with his wedding to Siobhan. Coming: Lisa devises another horrible plan. GOSSIP GIRL: Blair was elated as her dreams appeared to be coming true, but Serena - who is supposed to be Blair's best friend - threatened to derail everything by bringing up unsavory parts of Blair's past.

Charlie befriended Vanessa - yes, she's back and just might be playing out her own hidden agenda. Coming: Can the latest rift on the Upper East Side be mended?

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: When Ford offered to commit Tess to St. Ann's in return for Joey and Aubrey giving him his son, Tess attacked Ford and sought refuge with Cutter. Much to Ford's shock, he soon found out that thanks to Cutter's high-powered lawyer he can't do anything because Cutter is now Tess' husband. Tomas denied shooting Todd but was arrested for attempted murder after Natalie turned up his fingerprints on the syringe. Coming: Natalie is stunned by what she hears.

SECRET LIFE OF THE AMERICAN TEENAGER: Amy managed to get most of her family really annoyed with her, thanks to her petty arguments with Adrian over whose relationship will be the one to last. Meanwhile, when Amy insisted on moving in with Ricky, he didn't want that kind of commitment, and looked for a way out. Coming: Adrian is wedding crazy, and making everyone else a little nuts.

YOUNG AND RESTLESS: After figuring out that Neil fathered Sofia's baby, Olivia conspired with Sofia to push the conception date forward. Although Neil was relieved to find out he's not the baby's father he was also sad. Jack interrupted Victor's romantic day with Diane to announce that he bought Newman stock from Abby. Coming: Ashley tries to soften Abby's feelings toward Tucker.

LIZ SMITH

Will Sally Field Fly
as Mary Todd Lincoln?

By Liz Smith

"I WARNED Mary that she and Mr. Lincoln were not suitable ... they were different in nature and education and raising. They had no feelings alike. They were so different that they could not live happily as man and wife."

That's what Mary Todd Lincoln's sister had to say about the marriage of Mary and Abe.

Contrast this to Lincoln's own assessment: My wife is as handsome as when she was a girl, and I was a poor nobody who fell in love with her, and what is more, I have never fallen out."

The vagaries of this wedlock, one of the most famous, tempestuous and tragic in presidential history, is sure to be examined thoroughly in the coming Steven Spielberg movie, "Team of Rivals," based on the big Doris Kearns Goodwin bestseller. (Tony Kushner is adapting for the screen.)

Daniel Day-Lewis will portray Lincoln and Sally Field will corset herself into the role of Mary - capricious, spendthrift, hot-tempered, perhaps a little mad. She was observed at least once chasing Mr. Lincoln with a knife!

Now, before you go ... "Sally Field?" and begin using the words "perky" and such, please remember that back in 1988, Mary Tyler Moore gave an excellent account of Mary in Gore Vidal's TV miniseries "Lincoln." Like Sally, she was thought to be too slender to portray the full-figured Mary Todd, and despite her Oscar nomination for "Ordinary People" not quite up to the demands of such a dark role. Mary Tyler Moore was simply great. Gore Vidal didn't mind her being cast. His only concern was that Elizabeth Taylor had expressed interest. "Over my dead body," said Gore; or words to that effect.

Loving history as I do, I can't wait for Spielberg's "Team of Rivals."

THE FABLED West Texas "little town," where they made the classic movie "Giant," came to Manhattan the other night and like always, when Texans bring their money and get together with the New York art establishment, it all turned into an insane, big, noisy party downtown in a West 20s studio as big as all get out. (A person could have set up and lived in the huge elevator, which must have been designed to transport elephants.)

In a monsoon of rain, which these particular visiting Texans had probably never experienced before, the modern art world melded for the first time the "Ballroom Marfa" get-together in New York. There was artwork for sale on the walls, a big auction and a Texas-style dinner served up for the cognoscenti.

A grand time was had by all, especially since one of the hosts for the evening was Bertha Gonzales, the first female "Maestra Tequilera" - that is to say she is certified to rep the largest tequila company in the world. (Casa Dragones is a limited edition, uniquely smooth, sipping tequila and it was in unlimited supply from Jose Cuervo International.)

WHEN I first went to Marfa, Texas in my youth, it was a tiny town with the moldering set of "Giant" and the ghosts of Elizabeth Taylor, Rock Hudson and James Dean lingering to give it a bit of glamour. At that time, Marfa was just a stop in the road, a mecca for fundamentalist religious retreats, a Southern Baptist revival kind of little town.

Now it competes with Aspen and Vail as a second or first home for people who want to get away from it all. There were many "former" New Yorkers at this party, such as the charming Hamilton Fish who toiled and was spoiled by Manhattan life for years. He now lives full time in Marfa. And there were many wealthy offspring extant - young, good-lookers like Fairfax Dorn who comes from the Brown, Root, Negley money of Texas - the kind of kid who vaguely remembers Lady Bird Johnson after she left the White House and went back to Texas. Ms. Dorn and her handsome pals mixed and mingled with born and bred New Yorkers, like the blonde daughter of the late C.Z. Guest of Long Island, one Cornelia. I glimpsed the heads of Sotheby's and Christie's in the crowd. And Linda Yablonsky, the gossip maven of Art Forum magazine was covering it all.

My seatmate was young Robert Hammond who, with his partner Joshua David, had helped the popular High Line project to come into being. (They were backed in this venture by Barry Diller and Diane von Furstenberg, who both think the High Line is absolutely the nuts.) If you've never visited the High Line, it's New York's new "must" - a park devised with trees, blossoms and flowers created on rusting old railroad tracks up over the west side going to the Hudson River. It is the city's greatest free entertainment.

Flakmeister Rick Miramontez, that maven of chic entertainment, masterminded the first Marfa Ballroom event. (He is currently promoting and suffering through the birth pangs of "Spiderman" on Broadway, and, more importantly, always guides us to whatever the Carlyle Cafe is doing in the East 70s. Rick says the Marfa Ballroom had a great kick-off in the old-fashioned tradition and New York will hear more about Marfa, Texas.

I liked Mika Tajima's enamel and acrylic piece titled "Furniture Art" and I would have bid but the damned thing started at $1,200. I had to pass.

WOLFGANG PUCK'S KITCHEN

Make Mom a Treat You'll Both Love

By Wolfgang Puck

My mother always loved to watch me eat. Moms everywhere are like that: No matter how hungry they might be, they always want to feed their children before they feed themselves. So it's important, I believe, that anything children, whatever their age, cook for Mother's Day this coming Sunday should be something both mother and child would enjoy.

To me, that means chocolate. After all, who doesn't love chocolate, especially as a holiday treat?

So I'm happy to share with you an easy-to-bake goodie that any child (or husband) can make as a gift for Mom: Chocolate Chocolate Chip Cookies, a recipe originally created years ago at Spago.

To make the cookies as chocolate-y as possible, look for good-quality chocolate, one where the label says it contains a high percentage of cocoa butter, at least 70 percent, which provides not only richness but also the luscious melting quality everyone loves. I like imported brands such as Valrhona from France or Callebaut from Belgium; but there are also outstanding American brands like Scharffen Berger from Berkeley, California, as well as chocolates from small artisanal makers too numerous to mention. Have fun trying different products before you settle on one you like.

And you and Mom will find them pleasant at any time of day on Mother's Day. You could make the dough the night before and bake a batch in the morning to surprise her with her first cup of coffee. Or offer a plate of them to her with her Sunday afternoon tea. Of course, they are also great after dinner. In fact, I love to dip them in espresso, like the Italians do with biscotti.

However you serve them, though, please remember something very important. You must let Mom watch you eat at least one!

CHOCOLATE CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

Makes about 4-1/2 dozen

1-3/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
3/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
8 ounces unsalted butter, at room temperature, cut into small pieces
1 cup packed light brown sugar
3/4 cup granulated sugar
2 large cage-free eggs
1-1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1-1/2 ounces bittersweet chocolate, melted over a hot water bath or in the microwave oven
1/2 pound coarsely chopped pecans or walnuts or toasted and cooled unsalted peanuts (optional)
1-3/4 cups semisweet chocolate chips

In a mixing bowl, sift together the flour, cocoa powder, baking soda, and salt. Set aside.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer using the paddle attachment or beaters (or in a large mixing bowl using a hand-held electric mixer), beat the butter on medium speed until soft and fluffy. Add the brown and granulated sugars and beat them in; raise the speed to high and continue beating until the mixture is fluffy, stopping as necessary to scrape down the sides of the bowl and under the beaters.

Reduce the speed to medium and, one at a time, beat in the eggs; then, beat in the vanilla.

Stop beating and, with a rubber spatula, scrape in the melted chocolate; beat on medium speed until thoroughly combined.

Reduce the speed to low and gradually add and beat in the flour mixture just until combined. Add nuts, if using, and the chocolate chips, again beating just until combined. Wrap the dough in plastic wrap and refrigerate until firm, 1 to 2 hours.

Position a rack in the center of the oven and preheat the oven to 350 degrees F. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment paper.

Using a small ice cream scoop or a large spoon, divide the dough into balls of about 2 tablespoons each, rolling them between the palms of your hands. Arrange the balls about 2 inches apart on the prepared baking trays.

Bake the cookies until they feel slightly firm to the touch, about 15 minutes, rotating the trays 180 degrees from front to back after 7 to 8 minutes. With a wide metal spatula, transfer the cookies to wire racks to cool. If reusing a baking sheet to make another batch, let it cool slightly before arranging more balls of dough on it.

Once the cookies have cooled, store in an airtight container at cool room temperature.

Natalee Holloway's mother gets dual Lifetime showcases

By Jay Bobbin

Six years after Natalee Holloway disappeared, her mother is about to appear plentifully on the home screen.

Beth Holloway has continued to probe what happened to her daughter during a high-school graduation trip to Aruba. Just before she launches her own unscripted show, she'll be played again by Tracy Pollan. The Lifetime TV movie sequel "Justice for Natalee Holloway" premieres Monday, May 9, followed immediately by the debut of "Vanished With Beth Holloway" and its profiles of others searching for missing relatives. (The series' regular Wednesday run starts two nights later.)

"Where I am now, my mission is to help other families bring their missing loved ones home," says Holloway, an Arkansas native who has lived in Alabama since 2000. "I feel my perpetrator (prime suspect Joran van der Sloot) is in prison, so I have a bit more tangible information about Natalee's disappearance and the case surrounding it. I want so much to have every opportunity for other families, I never want it to be about me anymore. Most people (in similar circumstances) probably do get to that point."

The prospect of reprising her 2009 portrayal of Holloway (identified in that film as Beth Twitty, her former married name) was "really hard" for Pollan.

"I have to say, of all the things I've done, it definitely took the biggest toll on me emotionally," the actress maintains. "I was very happy to leave that project, just in terms of moving on ... so when they came to me (about 'Justice for Natalee Holloway'), I was like, 'I don't know if I can do it again.'"

Dedicated to portraying Beth Holloway as "not just passive and reactive, because that's not who she is," Pollan deems her "a very intelligent, very straightforward person when you're speaking to her. It's not like she's stuck in that time period and that emotion. She has done the most positive things with a situation like this, and showing that was important to me."

Tracy Pollan stars in "Justice for Natalee Holloway" Monday on Lifetime.

by David Burstein

Imagine yourself on a night out with family or friends at the "New" Amici's Restaurant at the corner of Broadway and 6th Street. Inside, soft music plays, tablecloths dress the tables, softly lit with candles that emit a low-lit aura. Have a drink, converse, scan the menu (it's large), place your order with the help of an attentive and knowledgeable server, and await a wholesome, satisfying eating experience. You'll be served a needed, fresh crusty bread, along with olive oil or butter if you prefer. Then await the aromas that precede your first course as it arrives at your table... they're mouthwatering.

I began with the portobello mushroom, stuffed generously with snow crabmeat and sprinkled on top with just the right amount of mozzarella cheese. The others in my party opted for the calamari, which was lightly fried a golden brown, and done perfectly, not too chewy. We then savored a linguini bolognese (that meat sauce is divine); a baked ravioli dish like grandma used to make; a chicken milanese moist and easy to cut with a fork; and a tasty, hearty rib eye steak. We all loved our meal choices, and the desserts and cappuccino and coffee that followed. The portions were all more than ample. What made it all even better, was that each couple used their dine-in coupons to get the price of one main course FREE.

This is the "New Amici's". They have changed with the times. There is a new vibrancy about the place. The entire exterior has been refurbished and redone. There's atmosphere and excitement about it. There's a buzz now, you want to be here. It's cozier, restful and still progressive. They have a coupon program that offers savings for in-house dining; for deliveries that come to $20.00 or more, and even more of a discount if the delivery is over $30.00. Look for Amici's delivery man, who will stand out, simply because he's dressed in a shirt and tie (that's class!).

And that's not all, Amici's is enticing you to come in for lunch, with a dynamite value "Lunch Express" for only $5.95... eat-in only, from Tuesday thru Friday, plus tax and gratuity and not valid with any other offer. You can't make a meal at home for this price. In addition, you're served and relaxed. The food choices are phenomenal.

An important meeting place is the new Martini Lounge, which offers so many martini choices, you might get dizzy before you have chance to sip one. It's been created for friendly conversation, TV viewing or just relaxing. You'll notice, there are new menus throughout the restaurant, but just look at the catering menu... it's a winner, and it's so reasonably priced, you'll forget how dismal the economy has become. Amici's fills you up with their family style buffet catering menu... it's unbeatable!

This is the place to come for any celebratory event you may be planning, either personal or business related, and don't forget Mother's Day, Father's Day, or just let it be your day, to spend happily at the inviting, exciting "New" Amici's.
